Title: ROSE technical meeting
Date & location: 1st April 2008
Organiser: ARENE Ile-de-France
Number of Participants: 14

Short description:

This meeting aims at framing a new network of stakeholders for the observation of energy consumption and green house gases emissions, the ROSE. Ultimately it aims at setting of an ambitious and coherent energy demand side management projects with a important focus on electricity. The ROSE partnership will be part of the regional process for thinking to energy efficient programmes.

Background:

Since the liberalisation of the market it has become extremely complicated to get data on energy as these have become highly valuable strategic data covered by the statistical secret. By grouping the biggest energy providers especially on electricity, the network will help observing the trend on electricity consumption.

Aim & programme:

The aim is to gather knowledge and data to be able to set up energy balance for the region and even on a smaller scale. The energy balance is a crucial tool in the elaboration of an energy action plan as it points out the biggest fields of consumption. Done regularly it also provides consumption trends and therefore potential targets. It can also help evaluating the impact of policies on electricity efficiency.

The aim of this network is to create and analyse these data and exchange on which actions to take to address each issue.

Results, follow-up:

The first energy balance of the region and its departments is now being produced. All the ROSE members have been solicited to give data. Once the document will be completed, it will be compared to the previous one and all members will participate to the setting of a coordinate plan towards efficient use of energy and particularly of electricity.
